The Waiting Game

Cruising to the Bahamas, lying on the beach and attending summer camp: some of the lovely advantages to June, July and August. But before you know it, the sunshine of summertime is just another memory, and it's back to hitting the books. One hundred and eighty days of writing and math problems. But let's just look outside of the box for a minute. What is school to many of us? For the first few months after returning from summer vacation, it's all about catching up with your friends and reuniting after three months away from each other. Then, the time comes for the holidays and everyone's excited about their plans, and when the break's over, it's all about the fun that was experienced and the gifts that were received. For a few short months, we all crack down and prepare for standardized tests, like High School Assessments and Advanced Placement exams. As soon as May comes around, the end of the year is in sight, the seniors look to receive their diplomas, and the underclassmen can't wait to end the year, knowing that next year they're one step higher on the totem pole. So what is school to the students of Northern High? It's five days a week, seven hours a day, and nine months a year that we are counting down and waiting for the next summer vacation. Contrary to what most people believe, this is just life between summers.

Caught in the Action

What is the one thing that keeps the school day interesting for you?

"It would be how teachers add interesting facts that have nothing to do with what we're learning about."

Alyson McKenzie, 12

"My classes make going to school more interesting because the people in my classes are hilarious..."

Bethany Shaw, 10

"Mr. Nicklin's government class, because I never know what to expect..."

FUN TIMES

Top: Stephanie Law, Andrea Warnick, and Jackie Rodeheaver have fun in school by taking part in spirit week's costume day. Andrea comments "Being in school seven hours a day is tough but it makes it a lot better when your friends are there to stick with you."

Middle Left: Taking part in laboratory experiments is a favorite for many chemistry in the community students. Robert Funk shows that cleaning is one of the important steps of the lab.

What makes you unique?

"I don't conform to what other people think I should be."

"I always try to be cheerful and happy all the time. Even when life isn't going my way, I know that I'm lucky to have such a good life. I like to see joy in everyday things."

"I wear toe socks and sandals!"

"What makes me different from the other people in my grade would have to be that I don't want to be like anybody else. I am me and that's what make me unique."

Whitney Glotfelty, 10

We Bleed Blue and Gold

In true Northern High fashion, Alyssa Rounds and Taylor Maltba show their school spirit at the Homecoming game. "My favorite parts [of Homecoming] were cheering our team on and wearing school colors," said Alyssa.

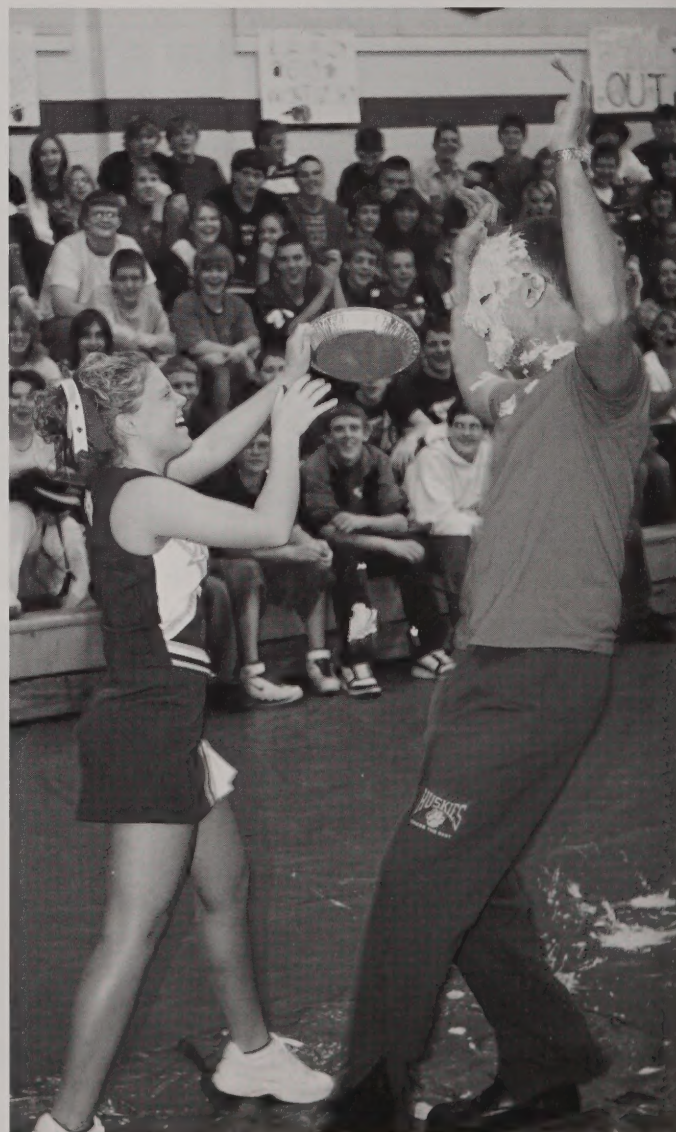

Dynamic Duo

Seniors Justin Beitzel and Zac Beitzel pose for the camera as they enjoy a bus ride to an away soccer game. "My most memorable moment of riding the bus would be all of us getting pumped up before the games," said Justin.

Pie Anyone?

Underneath a mask of whipped cream is the face of vice principal Mr. Maddy, after receiving a creamy delight during the 2006 pep rally. Mr. Maddy comments that he "was well aware [of] who would win the contest."

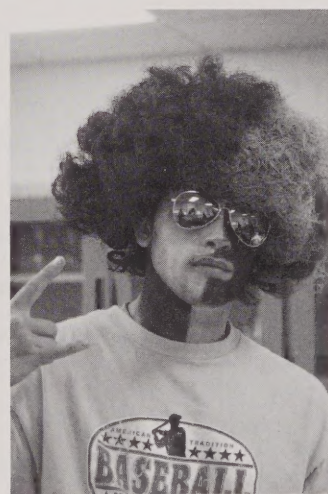

Kids At Heart

Students aren't the only ones who like to have fun to help the school year fly by. Pictured at the left, Mr. Berger, Mr. Opel, and Mr. Price take part in the second annual War of the Classes. This kind of activity "breaks up the monotony of the everyday routine and is a good, relaxing event," says Mr. Opel.

Wild and Crazy

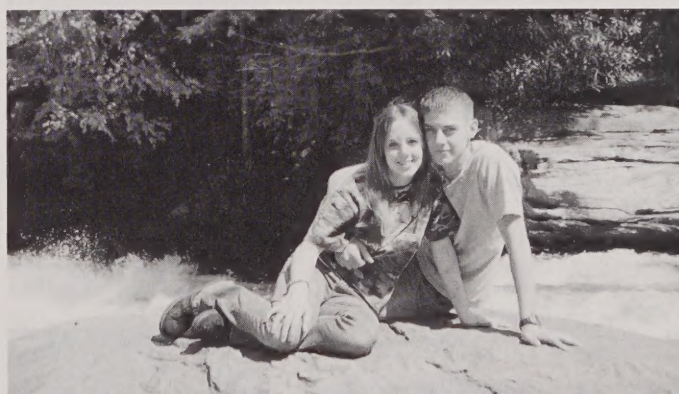

Huskies sure do have spirit and pride, especially junior Cory Stout.

"What I enjoy about showing school spirit is being able to be myself..." said Cory. Every Friday, the students have the chance to show their school colors by taking part in spirit day.

The Race is On!

Burning rubber and kicking up dirt, Tylor Kamp pushes the throttle, feeling the need for speed on his dirt bike. Tylor comments that he enjoys "racing and practicing on my cousin's race track." Many students enjoy riding off-road vehicles not only in competitions but as a hobby.

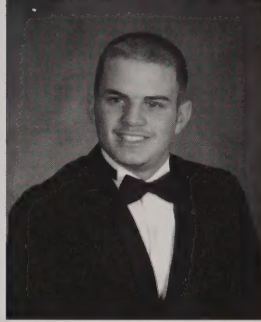

Cherishing The Moments

Many students, including Brittney Pennington and Kris Durst, escape the pressures of school by spending time at Swallow Falls. Brittney comments that "my favorite part of spending time with Kris at Swallow Falls was goofing around near the water..."

Dancing the Night Away

Aaron Menges and Alyson McKenzie get lost in each other's eyes at the 2006 Homecoming dance. Aaron commented that "Yes, [dances] do make the school year go quicker because [they] give you something to look forward to."

Winter Wonderland Fun

Although some students often feel a case of winter blues, many students take advantage of the "backyard" fun that can be found at the Wisp ski resort. Many students also use their love of skiing and snowboarding to help out with the blind skier program.

Food, Friends and Football

The junior varsity football team builds team unity while taking part in a post-practice picnic. Teams often stress team-building because of the countless hours athletes spend together.

Wild, Wacky and Wonderful?

Not afraid to show their school pride during the 2006 spirit week, Bryce Menges, Loren Klink, Dan Thomas, and Jason Doerr show their wild side on wacky day. Dan says, "I chose to participate because I enjoy being the center of attention."

Girls Just Wanna Have Fun!

Letting loose at Seven Springs Resort's skating rink, Megan Sisler, Amber Branthoover, Blair Crisson, Allie Benton and Lyndsay Miller enjoy a girls' night out. Megan enjoys "goofing off and having fun," when hanging out with her friends.

"Life is what we make it, always has been, always will be."-Grandma Moses

Students make the most out of school, while waiting for the final bell to ring in June.

"I look forward to the end of the year because I know I don't have to come back again."

"...Personally, music has saved me. I listen to classic rock albums while studying and doing homework. Everyone needs a lifeline, something to keep them sane through the bog of schoolwork..."

"I don't worry about things, I play sports, and I discovered time travel."

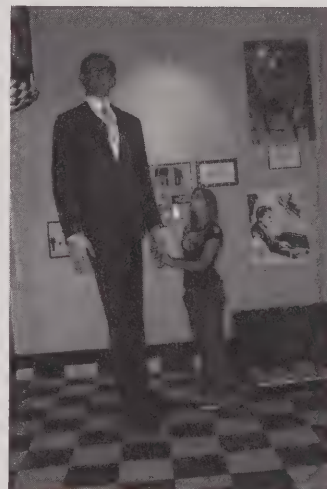

"[I make the school year more enjoyable] by participating in sports and keeping myself busy."

Corey Edmonds, 12

Emily Rosser, 11

Nathan Dawson, 10

Taylor Maltba, 9

Looking Up

During her summer vacation, Laura Schroyer marvels over the 8'11" replica of Robert Wadlow at the Ripley's Believe It or Not Museum in Ocean City. Many students look forward to summer vacations, showing school is just life between summers.

"Snow" What Fun

Taking advantage of one of Garrett County's winter days, Claire Vallano enjoys a sled riding experience. Students often look forward to snow days; the unanticipated days off help to relieve stress from the school days.

Glamorous...

Northern High School students get all dressed up for the night of their lives.

In the midst of spring sports, finals, and A.P. Exams, the prom creates an incomparable diversion for high school juniors and seniors everywhere. Northern's prom was no exception. Students celebrated the impending end of the school year while dancing, socializing, and posing for pictures at the Maplehurst Country Club.

For many students, prom is not only different from other activities during the year, but from other dances as well. Brock Glotfelty, 12, explains, "...it is just upperclassmen, and you have to put a lot more time and effort [into] getting ready for the dance."

This extra effort is a favorite aspect for many prom-goers. Krista Burns, 12, elaborates; "You get the perfect dress, your hair done, nails, [and] tanning to look like a pretty princess."

While prom is generally viewed as a formal event, it is also a perfect opportunity for attendees to socialize. Amy Lander, 11, says that among other things, her favorite part of prom was "...running around seeing all of my friends." This, combined with amazing decorations, music, and food, made the 2007 prom memorable for all.

By Caitlin Carr
Photos: Staff and Professionals

Elliot Glotfelty and Rachel Margroff enjoy the evening at prom together. Rachel says that her favorite part of the prom was "spending time with my date and my friends." Moments like these defined this year's prom.

ANOTHER FACE IN THE CROWD...
It was one thing to find a place to go. The number of people on the dance floor made the night even more special. According to Emily Kiefer, a prom-goer, "everyone was perfectly dressed up, it was so nice, and it was the last big event before the end of school."

TIMES LIKE THESE...
Dorothy Frankel and Jeffrey Frankel took advantage of the many opportunities to be a part of the night at the special Maplehurst Country Club. Dorothy says that prom was definitely the most special because of the location. "It was so pretty. And, it was really good."

Prom Royalty...

The 2007 Prom Court consisted of Brock Glotfelty, king, Ashley Branthoover, queen, Caitlin Carr, princess, and Bryce Manges, prince. Ashley says that her favorite part of the prom was "being prom queen with my best friend Caitlin Carr as princess! It was nice because the same people always win and it was different for once."

BRINGING FRIENDS TOGETHER...

Jordan Smith and out-of-school friend Shayla Hoover pose for a picture at the prom. Jordan liked the prom because "it gave me an opportunity to visit with friends and celebrate my upcoming graduation." Prom is a bridge to the future for most seniors.

CAUGHT IN A MOMENT...

Jessica Harvey and Kelsy Little caught in a moment of surprise and exhilaration, something not rare at prom. Kelsy says that "prom has become a huge thing over the years. It is known as the last dance and as a going-away get-together for seniors."

A MIXTURE OF ELEGANCE AND FUN...

Miriam Wilburn and Kerri Harding participate in a group dance at the prom. One of the best things about prom is the ability to mix an elegant night with the fun associated with a dance. Kerri says that "...it is a special night for everybody, especially if you're a senior. Kids get all dressed up and expect to have an elegant night at the prom."

DANCING QUEEN...

Jordan exclaims about Karianna. Prom shows off her dancing skills in a rapt audience at prom. Karianna says her favorite part of prom was "when [they] all started to go and dance... Here nobody listens to techno, while in Europe it is very popular." Cultural barriers did not keep Karianna from having a good time at Northern's prom.

BREAKING WITH CONVENTION...

Neil Kamp and Ariana Wilt enjoy their time at prom, where Neil's themed outfit was the subject of much conversation. He and classmate Corey Carr attempted to dress like the main characters from the hit movie "Dumb and Dumber."

NEW FACES...

Many Northern students brought out-of-school dates to the prom. Hannah Hare, for instance, poses here with date Brison Harvey. She says: "I love getting dressed up and spending time with my friends. My date was also quite amazing!" Hannah was not alone in bringing a date who does not attend NHS.

Show Me The Money!

American Idols?

Ben Joshua and Shawna Stallman show the student body that they're not going to let the early morning hours slow them down as they perform a karaoke number.

He Shoots...

Putting his strength and endurance to the test, Elliot Glatfely, 12, successfully makes a basket while competing in the bungee basketball game.

Hit Me With Your Best Shot!

Sophomores Justine Harvey and Brittany Mallow duke it out in the funny boxing ring. "The boxing game was really fun because it was very competitive. It gave people the chance to really mess around and just have fun with friends," said Brittany.

Speed Demon!

Senior Scott Bass shows his speed and agility as he races in the giant inflatable obstacle course. The obstacle course is always a success for the evening.

"Cueing" it Up!

With great concentration, Emily Rosser finds that playing pool helps to pass along the hours at after prom.

Fiesta!

Celebrating the good life, making memories to last a lifetime, all night long!

Foosball Fun!

From ball gowns and tuxedos to sweatpants and tennis shoes, the Northern High students sent the 2007 prom weekend out with a bang. Celebrating a cinco de mayo theme, students enjoyed festive decorations and Mexican-themed food, along with an inflatable obstacle course, funny boxing, a chocolate fountain, air hockey, pool tables and simply enjoying a good time with friends. "My favorite part of after prom was getting to spend time with my friends before graduation comes," said senior Mariel Hady. Local businesses donated over 40 prizes, ranging from gas cards to Ipods. Senior Erin Brenneman won the $1,000 prize and Caitlin Carr recieved the senior $250 prize. Garrett Gulledge, junior, won a $500 prize and Justin Rosenberger, junior, won the $250 check. Countless memories were made as the night wore into the morning and everyone celebrated life without drugs!

Poker Run

Anna Chisley, 12, takes her chance in the casino sponsored by the Lions Club.

Ewwy, Gooey, Delicious

The abundance of chocolate in the 2500-lb. fountain was definitely a crowd pleaser, especially to Anna Miller, 11, David Chisley, 12, and Abby Smith.

Hula, Anyone?

In the final stretch of after prom, Michael Clise and Nicole Espada compete against each other in the annual hula hoop contest.

Moving Forward

Counting down the Days...

...To a whole new world: Reality!

Counting down the days until graduation, NHS seniors began to prepare for college or for the work force they would be entering in just a few short weeks. Seniors gathered together to make a few last memories with fellow classmates as they embarked on the senior trip and drove toward the future in the senior parade. By the time the senior trip and parade rolled around, seniors were looking past finals and last minute assignments, and on to graduation. "I have mixed emotions about graduating...I just met everyone and now I will probably never see them again," says Tabytha Jones.

The senior trip, to Six Flags, was a time for the seniors to relax with their friends and enjoy a day away from school before exams. Throughout the school year, the seniors bonded and made memories, the senior trip was another addition to the memory books.

The senior parade, another memorable event, had a unique assortment of conveyances, from a firetruck to a horse. The seniors went all out this year to leave their mark at Northern High School. Angie Nunez brought her horse through the parade to show her unique style of transportation. Jonathan Moon brought another unlikely addition to the parade: his bike. This year, the seniors made the parade a rousing success.

The seniors will be remembered for a lot of things in school, and they will certainly enjoy their memories of their last trips together.

Most Likely to be Famous: Caitlin Carr, Angela Nunez and Jonathan Moon

Seniors will always be remembered for the things that they accomplish in high school. In their senior year, they decide as a group who will be remembered for being the most athletic, most talented, etc. Senior Superlatives give senior students a venue to show appreciation for fellow students. All of the seniors will be remembered for something they have done, but the seniors here will be remembered forever.

Let the Moment Last Forever

Kenny Reams takes time to pose for a picture with his friend, sophomore Julia Miller. Many of the graduating seniors say that younger friends are what they will miss the most after graduation.

Eyes to the Future

Ashley Branthoover is all smiling eyes as she greets class adviser Mr. Price after receiving her diploma. Ashley says, "To me, graduation means a new level of maturity, freedom, and the beginning of the real world."

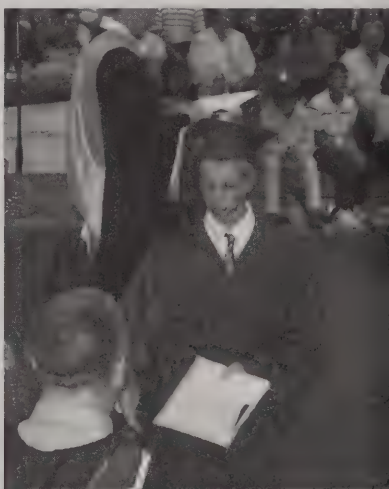

The Walk of Fame

Krista Burns takes her walk across the stage to receive her diploma. Krista comments, "[After graduation] I'm looking forward to the summer and just relaxing and not having to worry about school work anymore! I'm excited...to experience how college life is."

Addressing the Graduates

Salutorian Darryl Glotfelty addresses his senior classmates as they prepare to embark on the journey of the rest of their lives. In his speech, Darryl reminded his fellow graduates that, "This diploma gets us moving in the right direction, but what you do with it is what counts."

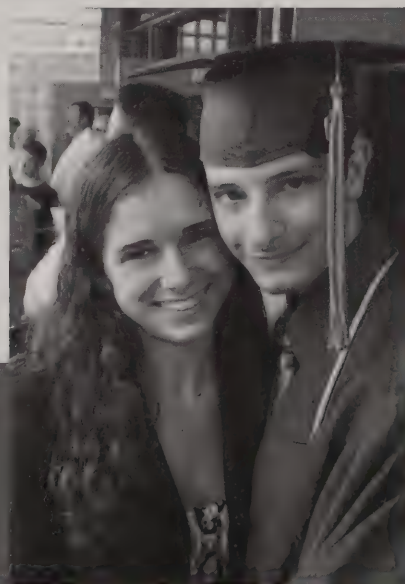

Moving Forward!

Randy Wilhelm descends from the stage after receiving his diploma. Randy says, "[Graduation] means going to a new school, finding new friends, and having lots more fun." Many look forward to the rewards of college life.

High School Sweethearts

Matthew George rejoices with girlfriend Ashleigh Friend after the graduation ceremony. Ashleigh will be sharing in the graduation glory in a few short years.

Watch Them Go!

"A journey of a thousand miles must begin with a single step." (Lao-tsu)

After many years of hard work and determination, they've finally reached their destination. It's that big day, the day many students have dreamt about since elementary school. The day that they get to walk across the stage and receive the single piece of paper many deem "freedom." About graduation, Michael Resh comments, "[There is a lot of] excitement and energy. The school year's coming to a quick end, and all of the seniors are going crazy!"

While many of these students are nostalgic about leaving behind childhood, they look forward to the their future and what it holds. Caitlin Carr says, "I am sad that I will be leaving my amazing friends, especially Ashley Branthoover, [but] I am looking forward to starting my life and moving to New York City! I am excited because my opportunities are limitless." After all, the earning of a diploma signifies the closing of one chapter in the book of life and the opening of a new one! Opportunities abound and the "real life" is about to begin.

It's Only the Beginning...

Jordan Smith and Wesley Smoot anxiously await their turn to receive their diplomas. Wesley says, "I'm looking forward to making music, having fun, and maybe working a little after I graduate."

Graduating to a New Level

After four years of hard work, hard determination, and a lot of sweat and tears, the Class of 2007 is finally here. It's time to say goodbye to the familiar and hello to the future. Congratulations to all the graduates who are about to take the next step in their lives.

Move On...but Never Forget

Although it's time to say goodbye to the familiar, please remember that the memories you have made here will stay with you forever. Keep them close and cherish them always.

Graduating With Class!

The Class of 2007 celebrate their graduation by shifting their tassels from the right to the left side of their mortarboards, signifying their change from girls and boys to women and men.

Night Fever

NHS Students are stayin' alive with a disco-themed Homecoming and Spirit Week

Life as a high school student is hectic and sometimes out of control. For one week every year, however, students at NHS let loose. Spirit Week, comprised of dress-up days, the homecoming football game, and the homecoming dance, is one of the focal points of any school year. Many students, like Stephanie Law, feel that Spirit Week is a good way to show school spirit. "It makes the school more fun. It is not as strict and you don't have to be so serious."

For some, the game is the highlight of the week. The homecoming game is unique from other football games during the year because, in the words of freshman Andrew Sisler, it "is more exciting and fun, because there's so much energy and school spirit."

Spirit Week is exciting, but for many students, the homecoming dance is the main event of the week. This year NHS witnessed an epidemic of Disco Fever as students danced the night away with their closest friends. Krista Burns claims that her favorite dance memory was when "all of the seniors danced in a circle and laughed and cried...it was sad!" Whether it was their last or first Homecoming, it was a memorable night for many students.

Photographs: Ashley Kinzey & professionals

Zac Cuper and Ashley Branthoover smile for the camera as they dance amongst their friends at Homecoming. Ashley enjoys hanging out with her friends throughout the entire evening. She claims that "the best part of the dance is spending time with my friends afterward, watching movies and eating potato chips." Spending time with friends is a common way to enjoy Homecoming.

Striking Spirit Week Gold...

"I made a costume that I thought was really cool and I won first place in the Costume Contest. It was a lot of fun to make and I was really proud of it. I was also the first to win the contest and I was really happy about that." - Ashley Kinzey

Caught in a Moment...

"I was at the homecoming dance and I was really having fun. I was with my friends and we were all dancing and having a great time. I was really happy to be there and I was really glad to be with my friends." - Ashley Kinzey

TOGETHER IN SPIRIT...

"Taylor Maltba, Caitlin Spear, Cassie Fike, Ashley Garlitz, and Rachel Margroff come together in camouflage during Camo Day. Students like Caitlin demonstrate school spirit in many ways throughout the school year. She says that she shows this spirit by "attend[ing] most of the athletic events throughout the year and play[ing] sports."

For many of this year's seniors, it was hard to believe that this Homecoming would be their last. Shayla Rodeheaver explains why this year's dance was so special. "At the end of the dance, all of the seniors who have been close since middle school had a last dance together." This will be a memory for the seniors for many years to come.

HOMECOMING ROYALTY...

Homecoming King and Queen, Stephanie Lutz and Brock Chisney, bask in their well-deserved Homecoming Dance. This couple stood out from the crowd. They were the queen's only girlfriend. "This was our first time seeing her in a male, but it was just the first."

Seeing Double...

Eric Espada and Cory Stout get into the Spirit Week festivities by dressing up on Twin Day. Cory, who went all out for every day, says that he looks forward to Spirit Week each year because "it's always fun to see what people will do." This year's events did not disappoint him.

LASTING MEMORIES

Kelly, Megan Margroff, Andi Miller, and Andi Fazenbaker pose for the camera at the Homecoming Dance. The girls are all cheerleaders and had to stay after the dance to clean up. Megan says that the most unique moment of the night was when "we had to pick up off the floor with W-D 40 and nail polish remover." Obviously, Homecoming memories not only made on the dance floor.

Kristen Dewitt, Karina Walker, Meredith Sussman, and Claire Vallano turn double into quadruple as they show off their very similar attire for twin day. Claire thinks that spirit week is a good motivator for school spirit because "...it gets everyone to participate." Twin Day is a very popular day during Spirit Week.

KEEPING THEIR HEADS IN THE GAME...

Nick Ferrell and Corey Diehl pause a moment during the intense Homecoming game. With all the excitement of Homecoming, it would be easy to get caught up and lose focus. Corey, however, says his favorite part of Homecoming is still simply "playing in the game."

Definitely Rap

Sophomores Kyle Gillum and Tanya Devine pose with NHS alumnus Casey Kamp at Tanya's home. Tanya would "rather dance with someone" than dance alone and says her favorite dance music is "definitely rap." Students all have different dancing styles and musical preferences.

Enjoying some "togetherness" are senior Crystal Humberson and junior Shawn Uphold. Shawn states that his "favorite dance is Homecoming because so many people come, and it's the first dance to finally let loose and have fun."

In the Spotlight

Junior Amanda Beitzel and senior Trevor Warnick recieved a very special moment in the spotlight at one dance. Amanda said, "At Sweetheart, Trevor and I had a light on us while we were dancing, and we were the only ones on the floor for a while."

You can usually spot seniors Aly McKenzie and Aaron Menges at the dances just as they are in this photo: enjoying each other's company. Aaron says that he enjoys "dancing with Alyson through the evening and taking her out to dinner before the dance." This is a routine that many couples follow before the dances.

Something Different

Some students, like junior Tyler Masters and close friend Brittany Harvey, like to go to the dances because it is something out of the ordinary. "I love going and hanging out with my friends and dancing all night. It's just something different to do and it's a lot of fun," Tyler comments.

Keeping the Peace

Justin Eric Espada and Garrett Gullledge both had a blast at Snowball. Eric comments that he has fun with Garrett because "no matter what we do, he always makes me laugh." Spending time with friends is certainly a popular reason for attending dances.

Shall We Dance?

Boogeying the Night Away!

Senior Ashley Branthoover smiles for the camera as she receives her award. "I enjoyed winning the 'Cutest Costume' Award because I made my costume myself so it was kind of a payoff for all the work."

A few special times a year, NHS hosts a dance for the students. Of course, students are masters at taking a few hours of fun and making it last the entire day. Before the dance, couples and groups of friends often go to dinner or to a friend's house. Sophomore Courtney Humberson says that she and her friends usually all get ready together at someone's house. Where they go depends on the parents, because the "parents choose who wants to put up with us all day." Jason Doerr, 12th grade, prepares for the dances "three hours early" so that he can get "all slicked up." He makes sure he is at his date's house early to take pictures.

Usually the female students make the most fuss about finding the "perfect" dress. But just how long does perfection take? Sophomore Amber Branthoover says, "I'm not too picky about dresses. Normally, it takes me about an hour to find the one." Others, like Courtney Humberson, say that "it takes all day" to find the right dress.

All in all, NHS students have fun at the dances. Senior Aly McKenzie pretty much sums it all up, "We usually go to each other's houses, go to dinner, and then complain about how uncomfortable our clothes are...but everything always turns out great and I have a lot of fun!"

Traditions

Some traditions like the annual NHS Dance have been around for years. But this year's Annual Dance was a little different. It was a night of fun and games. It was a night of fun and games. It was a night of fun and games.

Nights to Remember

Remember that special night when Krista Hines and her friend Jason Rice went to a Koolha moment. Krista remembers, "I was going to school up going to dance, dancing, and having fun with my boyfriend and friends."

Hanging Out

Junior Mim Wilburn and boyfriend Andrew Clark both had a great time at Snowball. Mim comments that the "dances were what made [my] junior year better and the [most] memorable thing was hanging out with [my] boyfriend."

Lyndsay Miller, a sophomore, chooses to take her summer activities to the wilderness. Lyndsay says she enjoys "mudding. The fun times give us good stories to tell and great memories of all of us together." Four-wheeler riding is a wild and different way to enjoy summer vacation!

DOWN AND DIRTY

With big events like the fair and vacations, it's hard to find time to just let go during the summer; however, this poses no problem for Amanda Brenneman and Chelsie Giotfelty, enjoying a girls' night out at Funland. Amanda states that this down-time was "fun, because it gave us a chance to catch up on things and talk about our summers."

Fun In The Sun

Whether just in the back yard or halfway around the world, students enjoy the refreshment of summer!

Before students begin their new "life between summers," they find all kinds of ways to have fun. As many would claim, we might as well live it up while we have the chance; however, people are doing so in many different ways.

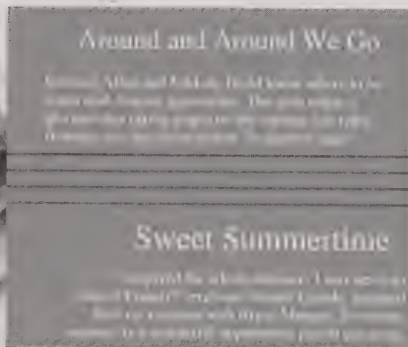

For most students, when the idea of a Garrett County summer comes to mind, they think of two main events: vacation and the fair. Tanya Devine, a sophomore, says she enjoys going on vacation "because of the time spent with family and friends." While some students travel abroad, others just enjoy what's in their back yards. Tabitha Robinson, a sophomore, says she enjoys the fair because "I like meeting new people and riding rides!" Along with these big events come small joys that are often overlooked. For instance, Mitchell Mast, a ninth grader, says in the summer months he enjoys "getting to get up at 4 a.m. to work with the cows and see the stars and then see the sun come up." Many everyday events like trips to Swallow Falls, sleepovers, and staying out late are sometimes overshadowed by the bigger summer events; however, these events are often what make the summer months truly unforgettable. Gesse Glotfelty, a junior, states that he enjoys summer because he gets "to swim and camp with my friends." Whether it is spent halfway around the world or in the back yard, summer provides a much-needed break when that final bell rings freedom.

Over the summer, some students choose to dedicate their time to help others learn. Jackie Rodeheaver, a senior, does this by working at Hickory for the elementary school camp. Jackie states that she most enjoyed "interacting with the kids. It was fun to get to know them and help them learn stuff."

SUN, SEA, SAND...

"I love the togetherness of sixty of our closest friends hanging out at the beach for two weeks," states Megan Margroff, just one of the many students who enjoy the tradition of a Florida vacation annually. Other students attending include Kyle Gillum, Brock Glotfelty, Meghan Voelkel, Sarah Voelkel, Whitney Glotfelty, Bethani Gillum, Kacie Fratz, Lindsay Wolf, Rachel Margroff, Stephanie Law, and Tanya Devine.

Volunteering

Honoring students who volunteer to help our community

Have you ever dropped anything in the hallway and had someone pick it up for you? Without people volunteering to help others, life would be much harder. Amanda Beitzel, 11th grade, says, "Volunteering is a good way of helping people and the community because you're out working with people and helping to do new things." There are many things students can do to help people around them. Some students work with the Blind Skier program, helping people who have trouble seeing still be able to ski. Best Buddies lets different groups of students get to know each other.

Students also participate in some outside of school activities, like firefighting, which takes a lot of training and a lot of time. NHS students always seem to find ways to help others around them.

Down Hill Fun!

James Law, 10th grade, says the best part about volunteering is "meeting new people and it is a fun activity to get service learning hours."

Have Fun But Still Help!

Shawna Sullivan, 12, and Amanda Beitzel, 11, help people with disabilities. Shawna says the best part of volunteering is "meeting new people that have great personalities."

Ready to Ride!

Like children, like many in Best Buddies, enjoyed taking time off from the rain at high school during the first Boulder Day Festival.

One for all...

What Ben Diehl, 11, likes best about Blind Skier is "getting to help underprivileged kids." He also thinks that "everybody should do it because it's fun and it helps somebody."

We Have A Winner

Chelsie Glofelty, 10th grade, was the Best Buddies quilt winner. She says "I won the quilt from a Best Buddies raffle. I was surprised to win the quilt but very excited about it."

Say Cheese

Best Buddies Krista Sellar, 11, and Jessica Harvey, 12, pose for a caricature at the Friendship Games. The games give all of the Buddies a chance to spend time with each other and meet new people from many different places.

Make A Pledge To Be Safe

Taleena Sines, 12, is a big part of Students Against Destructive Decisions (S.A.D.D.) "We sold bracelets that said 'empowerment' to remind people to be safe over the holidays. They also signed pledges that we hung on the tree promising to make good decisions."

New Friends

Meaton Vosker and Tyler Kamp help out a blind skier. Meaton says, "I liked meeting all the blind skiers and talking to them. It was just like talking to a friend." Blind skier is a really good program. I notice everyone makes things as I think the blind skiers enjoy talking to people from different schools."

A Lifesaving Decision

Senior Jackie Rodeheaver, a volunteer firefighter, says "my favorite thing about volunteering is the adrenaline rush of not knowing what to expect on each call. I also love helping people and knowing that what I do is making a difference in somebody's life. Maybe even saving it."

Deck the halls!

Amanda Beitzel, 11, helped build the S.A.D.D. Christmas tree "so people could have a safe holiday." Not only does the tree make the lobby more festive, but it also provides an important message about making good decisions during the break.

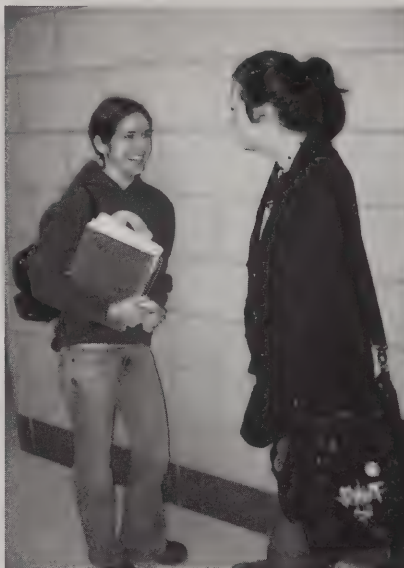

Bringing it all together

Hannah Sines, 10, John Moon, 12, Shawn Uphold, 11, and Mandi Fazenbaker, 11, get together to show off the many different styles of clothing. "In high school, individuality is fashionable. Everybody has a different style and their own definition of 'fashion'," stated Mandi Fazenbaker.

Is that your shoe?

Different Northern High School students prove that it does not matter what style of shoe you have, as long as it is comfortable.

Catching Up

Ashleigh Friend, 10, and Julia Miller, 10, discuss episodes of their favorite TV shows from the night before.

What's Hot

The students of Northern High School were randomly polled for what they felt was most popular in today's society. The results are:

Movie: Pirates of the Caribbean
TV Show: CSI
Clothing: American Eagle
Music: Rap
Restaurant: Olive Garden
Cell Phone: RAZR

Different Styles

There are many different types of music that students of Northern High School listen to. Brian Williams, 11, says that "... a lot of people at Northern High School listen to rap."

Look Who's Calling

Cell phones can be used to help locate someone, or just to chat. Students who use cell phones often have new or up-to-date phones. Regarding popular phones Elijah Lais, 11, stated, "Razr, everyone has 'em."

What's Popular

Following Students Through the Ever-Changing Flow of What's Popular and What's Not.

What's popular? The question haunts high school students like a bad dream. No one wants to be considered unpopular, so some people try to follow the fads as much as possible. This year has been no different from any other year, between the clothing, movies, shows, and even different styles of shoes. Everywhere you look, you can tell what is in style and what is not. RAZR phones, American Eagle clothing, and TV shows such as Grey's Anatomy, are all things that students deem popular in today's society. "It's not so much important to follow the fads as it is to find clothing that fits your own personality," stated Stephanie Shapiro, 11. Besides, fashion is something that changes with the seasons. You can never tell when a trend is going to disappear. The best style of all is just your own style. "Just be yourself. You probably won't see many of your high school friends after you graduate. So you shouldn't build yourself around them," stated Angel Giron, 12. Northern High School students are up to date on what is hot and what is not. So whether or not you follow a fad is up to you, but some students of Northern High School are going to continue to follow the everyday cycle of what is popular and what is not.

Vogue

Megan Wiley, 10, shows off her American Eagle shirt. "Brand name clothing like American Eagle, Hollister, and Abercrombie [is] popular for girls..." stated Megan.

A Formal Affair

Heather Thomas, Ashlie Rodriguez, and Loren Klink sat at a table before Prom 2006. "Unk is convenient, has a great selection and has an appealing atmosphere for students," stated Loren Klink, 12, about why Unk is a popular place to go before dinner.

Purses, Purses, Purses

Purses are always very helpful. The best kind of purses are "big ones, [because] you can carry more stuff like magazines and food," according to Megan Klinker, 10.

Night at the Movies

The Best Buddies group went to see "Flushed Away." The best part of going to the movies, says Katy Savage, 11, is that "It feels good because you're with people you like and you always have a lot of fun."

Let Loose

NHS Knows How to Let the "Dawgs" Out!

"We didn't lose the game; we just ran out of time." (Vince Lombardi) The D.P.G., or the Dawg Pound Gang, had this attitude throughout basketball season. They continued to cheer on the basketball team even when all seemed lost. Coach Edwards says "[The D.P.G.] has helped us win games, and we support and really appreciate them." Not only does the D.P.G. keep the rest of the crowd excited, but they keep the players and the game exciting. Dustin Platter, 11, "The D.P.G. helps [me and the players] by cheering for us and keeping us pumped for the entire game."

Students show spirit not only at games, but also in school. Students dress up in blue and gold on game days and Fridays to show their school spirit. Many of the students do this because they enjoy cheering on others and supporting their school. Cory Stout, 11, says "I show...spirit in the D.P.G. and other events because if I was in that sport, I would want someone with the same enthusiasm."

Let me see your spirit!

Students showed spirit by getting involved to the pep rally and participating in a cheer. Alexandra Stumaker, 9, says, "The cheer led students get out of their seats and join in."

We're #1!

Danielle Cousek, Susan Thatcher, Kristin Barnes, Sierra Pittman, Justine Harney, Kelsey Jones, and Thomas Hultschewides show spirit. Sierra, 10, says, "Everyone gets into the game!"

Above: During War of the Classes, students cheer on their grade by holding signs and wearing face paint. Susan Thatcher, 11, says, "[Using signs and paint] shows our class spirit because we want to see our friends win."

Mr. Edwards, Mrs. Stough, Mr. White, and Mr. Opel eat fast in War of the Classes. Mrs. Stough says, "It's nice when faculty and students can do something together outside of the classroom."

Painted Pride!

Shayla Rodeheaver, Carolyn Maxim, and Danielle Fensel show pride at a basketball game by wearing blue and gold shirts and paint. Shayla Rodeheaver, 12, says, "Having spirit allows us to be good fans and help support the athletes throughout the games."

Messed Up Dress Up!

Jordan Fratz, Cory Stout, and Mr. Berger participate in War of the Classes by dressing up as crazily as possible! Mr. Berger says "Participating in activities organized by students shows my enthusiasm for NHS! (Plus, I love dressing in women's clothes!)"

Krista Beiler, Anita Opel, Heather Thomas, Eric Espada, Cory Stout, Brittany Mallow, Bryce Manges, and Brock Glotfelty show spirit by wearing school colors on Fridays. Heather Thomas, 12, comments, "Wearing blue and gold helps show pride in my school and help support our team."

WWF: Women Wrestling Fans!

Bernadette Whiting and Whitney Glotfelty show spirit by wearing homemade shirts to support the wrestlers. Whiting, 10, says, "Wrestling generally doesn't get as much recognition as other sports. I wanted to show the boys my support because I love them and wrestling very much!"

Smiling Spirit!

Rachel Birkby shows spirit by wearing a Northern Huskies sweatshirt. Rachel, 10, says wearing blue and gold shows spirit "because blue and gold are the colors of Northern High!"

Taking part in extra-curricular activities helps students to pass the time of the school year.

"Playing sports is enjoyable, and helps to relieve the stress of a normal school day. Looking forward to each practice makes the day go faster."

"High school sports take up all your time. [They] require a lot of dedication. Sports sometimes make you forget about school."

"Playing sports is fun and time flies when you are having fun!"

"Playing sports is a really good way to help pass the time because you always have something to look forward to at the end of the day. Whether it's games or practice it's always fun..."

Bump, Set, Spike It

Although the Lady Huskies had a rebuilding season, junior setter Lindsay Wolf sets up senior hitter/setter Jackie Rodeheaver to execute a play to help the ladies win the match.

The Pressure's On

Sophomore soccer member Amber Kling concentrates on outsmarting the other team's goalie in order to add to the Lady Huskies' successful season. Amber says that the most challenging part of playing soccer is "the four-hour practices in the summer."

Swing Batter, Batter

Senior Randy Wilhelm concentrates while he's up at bat, hoping to get a hit to help his team keep their winning record. Randy comments that his most memorable baseball moment was "when I hit a home run against Smithsburg to help us win the game."

Middle: Jason Doerr receives assistance from trainer Mrs. Terry Jo Stough. Jason states, "I love Mrs. Stough because she is like the mother of all sports. She is the glue that holds our teams of NHS together when we are hurt and fallen." Bottom Right: Kyle Gillum progresses down the field, trying to avoid a tackle from his opponent. Kyle says, "It feels good to score a touchdown because I know I helped my team out. I like seeing Coach Moranduzzo's face when I score." Bottom Left: Looking for a hole, junior Ben Diehl carries the ball with speed and precision. One of the more surprising credentials for being a successful ball runner is "good vision" according to Ben.

Monsters of Fall

Sticking Together Makes All the Difference

As mid-August approaches and most students are enjoying the last of an extended summer vacation, the sound of pads popping can be heard at Northern's Half-Mile High Stadium. Football, a sport reliant on teamwork, embodies both speed and power. This means many dedicated hours of practice are needed for success. Steven Funk, a junior, says that "summer practices help the team in the long run by getting all of us in shape, learning the basics, and getting the team to know each other by being with each other all day." The Husky football program has enjoyed much recent success. Football is a sport that teaches the importance of teamwork. Junior Eric Espada says, "Everyone [on the team] gets along and works well together." The seniors on this year's squad are a great example of a team coming together as they progressed from a winless J.V. team to three consecutive winning Varsity seasons. Also, after dropping Southern 37-12 in the last game of the season, Northern has now beaten the county rival for five consecutive years. Brock Glotfelty, a senior, says that beating Southern "was awesome! We made history!" The future looks promising, as the junior varsity team enjoyed a fantastic season with only two losses this year. In the words of Andrew Carnegie, "Teamwork is the ability to work together toward a common vision...It is the fuel that allows common people to attain uncommon results."

Running with the Big Dogs!

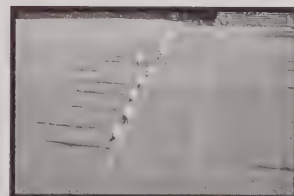

In an attempt for extensive yardage, quarterback Garrett Guldedge hands off the ball to senior Corey Carr. Garrett says, "[I feel comfortable with Corey running the ball because] he is big and gains us a lot of yards." Corey handled the responsibility well, dramatically increasing Northern's total number of rushing yards.

We're In This Together!

To keep all the players up to date on the upcoming plays, teammates from the J.V. squad meet in a huddle. Not only does this allow time to plan, but it is also a great time for encouragement. Josh Duckworth says that, "[In the huddle] I try and motivate the kids and get them fired up for the game."

Putting it All on the Line!

Lining up to kick off, Northern's Junior Varsity team is set and ready to go! The first play is often one of the most important of the entire game.

Determination

Giving it all you have, when you have nothing left to give!

Determination, along with perseverance, earned the boys' soccer team an impressive year. The boys' season started out hard with a tough loss to Salisbury. Even so, the team was determined to rise above the rest. The best part of the season, says Zach Lipscomb, 10, was "being able to come back from a loss and fix what we did wrong and win the next games." The boys' team finished off their impressive season with ten wins, one tie and three losses. One of the boys' toughest games was against Alco, where they ended up tying after a long and hard game. They gave all they could in the playoffs, defeating Williamsport in the first round. In the end, however, they lost a disappointing game to Beall in the last 12 seconds, ending their outstanding season. "My favorite part of playing on the team is playing against the best team in the league because it gives you a challenge," says Daniel Warnick, 10.

Hustle

Bringing back the winning tradition... it's our time!

A snapshot of last year's team would show many of the same faces as this year's team; however, it is what's inside the players that has changed. The Lady Huskies soccer team returned full of fire for the 2006 season, determined to be more successful than last year's 3 win record. They took some hard hits last year, but this year the tables have turned as the Huskies put a hurting on many opponents. "It's all about team pride," says Erin Brenneman, senior. "The game is 80 minutes long; in the end it really comes down to one thing: who wants it more, and we wanted it bad." This was shown as they rose to grasp the title of WMIL champions with a 12-2-1 record. This is a huge improvement from their 3-11-1 record of last season. This is a great honor, since this was the last year ever for the WMIL league. The Huskies have made many positive alterations this season, including improving coaching styles, stressing team unity, and adding a new center striker, freshman Adria Graham, to the lineup. Adria ended up being the leading scorer in the area for the majority of the season! Many lessons were learned this season. "Girls soccer has shown me that you have to work for things you want because they won't always be handed to you," says Devan Yoder. The Lady Huskies did work hard as they increased their practice time to four hours per day during the preseason. This full dedication to hard work and to the team brought the Huskies out on top.

Bumps

A Bumpy Road Builds Unity

"Victory is sweetest when you face defeat." (Unknown) The Northern girls' volleyball team faced defeat before the season began. As a team, they faced many challenges. After losing six seniors, there were major shoes to be filled. Now this year's seniors had to take a leadership role. Emma Bass, 10, says "[The seniors] were very supportive of us and always encouraged us to do our best."

The team also lost their coaches, after becoming accustomed to their leadership style during previous years. Danielle Brenneman, 11, says "The hardest thing was adjusting to the way Coach Hawkins did things compared to what we had done [before]." Both varsity and junior varsity teams struggled, and ended up with disappointing seasons.

Regardless of the outcome, the players gave their all and worked together as a team. Erin Beiler, 9, says "We all had to work together to be successful." All players got a taste of the sweetest victory, team unity.

On the Green

"One shot at a time"-Coach Warren Goltfelty

When most people think about golf, they think of it as a sport of little stress and much relaxation. Only a handful of students at NHS can understand that it involves plenty of motivation, fun times, and priceless moments.

Sophomore Aaron Newman's motivation is "the ball hitting the bottom of the cup" at the end of a putt. Junior Jeffery Smith "motivates [himself] by having fun." Yet others motivate themselves with future goals. Then there is the natural passion that comes with the game. Freshman Christen Bergstrom says, "My first year was exciting and I had fun playing golf with my team." And of course, one of the most exciting parts of participating in any sport at NHS is "winning, especially against [rival] Southern" commented Andrew Joslin, grade 11.

The memories shared by the team will be unforgettable. Junior Matt Sisler "will never forget when Neil Kamp, 12th grade, was hit in the head with a golf club." Many of the members note the numerous times they played golf in the hotel room at Regionals.

Whether it's practicing golf putts in a hotel room or concentrating hard on the course, the NHS golf team always finds a way to enjoy this activity.

Struggles

Through all the struggle, there comes triumph

"For better or worse, our future will be determined in large part by our dreams and by the struggle to make them real." (Author unknown). For the boys' basketball team this year, it was one struggle after the other. Fortunately, most of the time, the boys knew how to put the past behind them, and they found themselves victorious. "We overcame everything with teamwork, belief in one another, and lots of hard work," says Coach Edwards.

The Huskies were faced with many struggles. The most difficult was at the start of their season, when they experienced a number of disheartening and upsetting losses. Many of the boys were upset with their playing, but with perseverance, they managed to work through it together and pulled off some major wins.

Playing another part in the success was the coaching. "By working hard and putting the team before yourself, good things can happen," says Coach Elliott.

Overcoming struggles is extremely difficult, but together, the Huskies boys' basketball team accomplished just that.

Northern Lady Huskies Rule the Court

Welcome to the Igloo, the home of the Lady Husky Basketball team. Because the team is made up of friends, the girls easily work together and have fun. "Playing high school basketball is a whole new level of playing. It's way more intense and demanding [than middle school basketball] so I knew [that] I had to step my game up and play to my potential. I had to play well for my team so we could succeed and win games," says freshman Adria Graham. It's not just about wins and losses for these girls, but more about teamwork and fun.

Whether it's defense or offense, the Lady Huskies do their best to protect our house.

Fearless

...Raising the Bar for Northern Athletics...

The Northern wrestlers came out prepared and ready to rumble this season as they went undefeated in their regular season and took second place at the team state tournament. Nothing could break them down, not even the rage of the Rams; Northern arose victoriously, de-throning the Rams three consecutive times this season. The tables had turned; the Husky side of the county rose to the top! [Our biggest accomplishment this year was] "beating Southern three times because it was a big upset and they are our rivals," says Josh Duckworth.

Nothing short of pure dedication, hard work, discipline, and drive got Northern to where they are. "The hardest part of wrestling is fighting back after going down in points or fighting off your back for a whole period because [doing] that takes a lot of drive and pride. That is what makes a wrestler, fighting back," says Jason Doerr.

Nine wrestlers, an all-time high, made it to the regional tournament. Of those nine, four advanced to the state competition, two of them by claiming a first place victory. These two, Dustin Stough and Brock Glotfelty also placed in the State tournament, Glotfelty claiming first place after two years as the runner-up, and Stough taking a fourth place win. Wrestling is mental as well as physical. It is a sport of blood, sweat and hard work. The confidence and pride each wrestler must have is incomparable. They laid it all on the line, staying focused and giving it their all. Everything finally paid off; the Huskies swept the area and earned the respect they deserved all along.

Brock Glotfelty, a senior captain for the Huskies, made his mark this year as he pinned his way through the Bi-County, Regional, and State tournaments; he was the State Champion at the 215 lb. weight class. Glotfelty also got his 100th win this season, making his career record 118-17.

Andrew Ganoë stands his ground and defeats his opponent, last year's state tournament contender, Devan Brown. Ganoë not only defeated Brown at the team match, but also at the Bi-county and Regional tournaments. Ganoë placed fourth at Regionals, giving him a bid to States!

Tension...

Members of the NHS Cheer Team come through a long season and prove that they can hold their own competitively

Imagine the high tension of a close sports match, combined with the movement and grace of a high energy performance. This combination results in one of the most complex sports in existence: cheerleading. Unlike other sports, the NHS cheerleading squad has only one chance to prove that they have what it takes to make it to the top, and that chance is a state competition held in College Park, Maryland. Mandi Fazenbaker, 11, explains that "the most rewarding aspect of cheering this year was competition. I love working to go." Despite the tension, competition is obviously a favorite for the squad.

Apart from competition, cheerleading is unique from other sports in many other ways. For one thing, the season lasts not three months, but most of the year. Andrea Miller, 11, sums it up. "...we are with each other for close to 10 months. And even though we're not considered a sport, we have to follow...sports rules." These differences add to the character of this unique sport.

This year, the cheerleaders received sixth place honors at the annual state competition, showing that a small town squad can hold their own in a competitive environment. This was not accomplished with ease. The cheerleaders had to memorize three dances, perform multiple stunts, and practice many months for this honor. In the end, as Linzi Sisler, 10, puts it, cheerleading involves "a lot more memorization and dependence on your teammates [than other sports]."

Andrea Miller, Katie Kelly, Mandi Fazenbaker, and Ariana Wilt, 11, take great pride in the teamwork and accomplishment that their stunt group has achieved. Ariana claims that "the most rewarding aspect of cheerleading this year was that my stunt group got a lot of different and difficult stunts."

Making Memories...

Mandi Fazenbaker, 11, Jessie Wilt, 11, and Laura Butner, 10, pose before a football game. Mandi notes that, "Cheering is different from other sports because it's not played with a ball or any helmets or pads." This lack of protective equipment may account for the numerous injuries in the sport nationwide.

Facing Challenges...

Co-Captains Stephanie Law, Caitlin Carr and Angela Nunez, 12, faced many challenges and responsibilities this year, but there were also rewards. Angela states that "it was gratifying receiving respect from the members on the squad who were mature enough to show it. I know they'll make something of themselves."

"[It's enjoyable to coach] because we have a bunch of great kids who work hard and have put a lot of time into baseball."

Coach Phil Carr

"It was quite a privilege to coach such a dedicated and hardworking group of young men."

Coach Ed Carr

"It was a privilege to be part of this team... They played as a team better than any team I have coached, which is why they accomplished things no other Northern team had."

Coach Jeff Carr

"[My favorite part about this season is] the fact that the kids came to practice and games every day dedicated [to] getting better each time out."

Coach Holsopple

"The hardest part was by far the weather in the beginning of the season."

Coach Warnock

"We have great kids and this was such a close group and every game and every win was such a joy for the players and they deserved everything they achieved."

Coach Workman

"This year's team is different because we have tremendous team unity. We all want the same things and are willing to work hard to get there."

The Innings Go On...

One Great Season After Another!

"Some people dream of success...while others wake up and work hard at it." (Author Unknown) This year's baseball team worked extremely hard and in return had a successful season. After having a great season last year and losing valuable seniors, they continued to dominate on the field as a team. Brock Glotfelty, 12, comments, "The team continued to be successful because we had a lot of juniors on last year's team, who received a lot of playing time and they stepped up and filled the spots of those who graduated." The varsity team went on to win the Regional Championship for the first time ever, which advanced them to the State Tournament. Although they lost in a close game against Colonel Richardson with an ending score of 9-7, they ended with the best record in school history with 22 wins and 2 losses.

Battling Bad Weather to Play Ball

"Attention students, the girls' softball game this evening has been cancelled." The Northern Garrett softball team got used to hearing this all throughout the season. But the harsh playing conditions and bad weather couldn't keep their spirits down. Brittany Mallow, 9, explains, "[We] would just shake [a loss] off and prepare for our next game."

Even after a rough season, the girls kept their high spirits and kept their hopes up for next season. It's not just about wins for this team, it's about fun and friendships they will treasure for a lifetime. Fortunately, no amount of bad weather will erase those memories.

Run For Your Life

"Our Sport is Your Sport's Punishment"

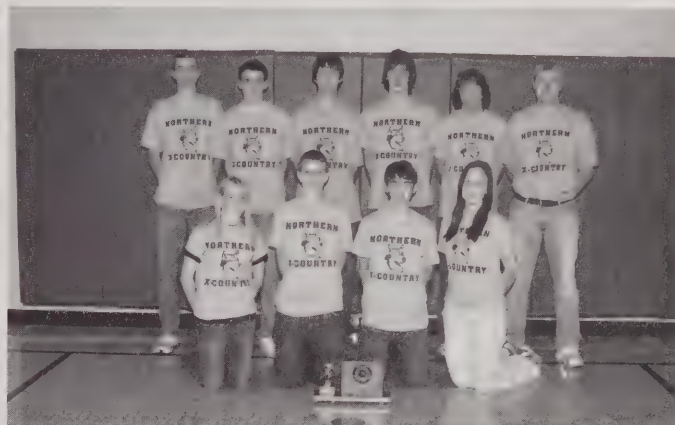

Distance, throwing, sprinting, jumping, which event are you? Track isn't just about being fast. Endurance and team effort are big things that factor into winning.

On the distance end of the running spectrum, both in track and cross-country, athletes use various techniques to improve their stamina and performance. William Herpel, 10th grade, explains that "at the beginning of the race, it is easier to run with a teammate, but towards the end you just want to catch the next guy in front of you. Even if it is your teammate."

As opposed to the more laid back distance runs, the sprinting and throwing events can be very exciting.

Both the track and cross-country teams performed impressively this year. In cross-country, Ryan Bowser won the state title. In track, the girls won the WMIL and the boys received 2nd. Amber Kling, 10, explains that her "favorite thing about track is winning WMIL and making it to states."

New Beginnings

Starting off on a new foot, or at least a new court

Tennis can be a very frustrating sport. Rackets will be thrown, words will be uttered, and mistakes will be made. The Northern High School boys' and girls' teams have gone through a very difficult change. For the past couple years, the teams have slowly been losing more and more seniors. This year, the girls' tennis team realized that there were only four players returning to the team. The boys' team found that they had the same number of players as before, but not the same depth as in previous years. "You learn your partner's limits, and when you have someone new there is more room for error and miscommunication," stated Trevor Devore, 10, about playing doubles with different partners.

The new girls on the tennis team learned quickly, but the lack of experience made the season more difficult than in past years. "Last year we had all returning players and we all knew how things worked, how to play, and what was expected; this year we had to teach the new girls all of this, so we couldn't just go into things like we could before," stated Nicole Espada, 12.

The boys' tennis team worked together to find the strength to form a strong team, and found that they were not a team to be taken lightly. Unlike other teams that would fall apart during this transition season, the NHS boys' and girls' tennis teams pulled together and had a season to be proud of.

What is your favorite part about being in your varsity club?

Dedication

American Idols? Yes, Please!

The Lettermen engage in a Christmas break end-off by singing Christmas carols. Loren Klink, 12, says, "...the fact that we couldn't remember all of the words made it funnier."

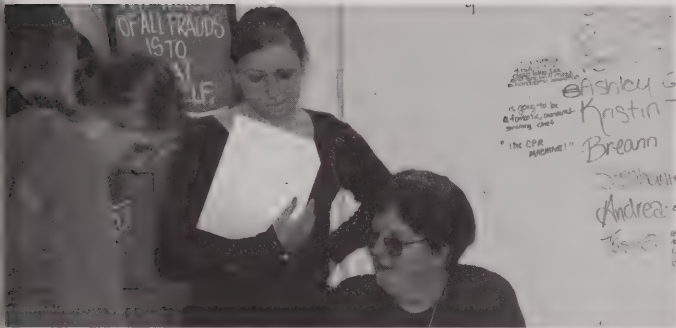

"Consider for a moment what we achieve from athletics--the sheer fun of competing--the building of a healthy and alert mind and body--stamina, courage, perseverance, dedication, commitment, selflessness, and, most importantly, the will to excel." (Author Unknown)

Most people think that anyone who plays a sport is considered an "athlete;" however, it often requires much more than that. The hard work and dedication athletes put into bettering themselves in a sport may land them varsity positions. To show well-earned respect to these athletes, we have both the Girls' Varsity and Boys' Letterman clubs. An elite group of athletes join the ranks in these clubs to represent our school's athletic programs, and they do it well. "Champions aren't made in the gyms. Champions are made from something they have deep inside them--a desire, a dream, a vision." (Muhammad Ali)

Clubs in Action!

Down To Business!

Baylee Martin-Selders, Mrs. Umbel, and the Girls' Varsity crew join forces to help plan a spring dance. Baylee, 12, is this year's treasurer of the Girls' Varsity club. She says, "[My favorite part about being in Girls' Varsity is] being able to talk and work with everyone in the organization."

Supermen, Come Save Us!

During Letterman Initiation Week, boys who participated in a varsity sport during the previous year dress up as superheroes. Jason Doerr, Justin Beitzel, Loren Klink, Bryce Manges, and Nathan Dawson go all out. Nathan, 10, jokes, "[I chose to be a Ninja Turtle because] I was previewing my costume for my new movie TMNT coming out this spring."

Concentration and Dedication!

Shayla Rodeheaver, a senior, says that her favorite part about being in Girls' Varsity is "being able to be with all the other varsity athletes." The friendships made through these elite groups can last a lifetime!

Meeting Time!

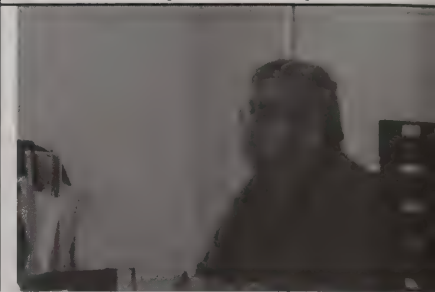

Club meetings are held the first Thursday of every month. Here, Sarah Voelkel, Amber Kling, and Sierra Pitman enjoy the time out and participate in the meetings. The monthly meetings are what keep the clubs together.

The Backbone of Garrett County!

Future Farmers of America (FFA) was first founded in 1928; it has come a long way since then, but it has remained constant. FFA helps provide future farmers with skills and knowledge that will be valuable in their future profession. Vocational Industrial Club of America (VICA), which has now been renamed Skills USA, is a great program that helps students show their career-related skills. It also provides vocational students a place to showcase their skills - competition! Both programs give students valuable hands-on experience that helps prepare them for their chosen careers.

Mr. Deal, who teaches both FFA and VICA, has a lot to do during the year. He has to make sure the students keep the flowers alive for the plant sale. He also has to make sure that the students who go to the state vocational competition are prepared and will represent Northern well. He says, "The best thing about teaching FFA/VICA is [that] I get to work with students outside of the classroom. Students compete in state and national contests and develop their leadership skills."

Shooting Hoops and Spraying Roots

Cowgirl Harman!

Ms. Harman, who participated in the Donkey basketball game, says, "The entire event had me laughing most of the time. The hardest thing was getting on the donkey. I was afraid I would fall, so I always had the guy help me. Once I was on, I just kept hoping that I would stay on!"

Time for a Drink

Junior Jamie Rayner waters the flowers in the greenhouse so that they will be at their best for the annual FFA plant sale in the spring. Jamie says, "the best thing about helping out in the greenhouse is having a school period that is not just bookwork and lectures. FFA is a learning experience and is an opportunity to meet new people."

Flower Picking

Kasondra Broadwater checks each of the plants to make sure everything is going well in the greenhouse. Growing healthy plants takes lots of time and effort, and all of the FFA members are willing to contribute in order to make sure that their plants are the best they can be. Kasondra says the best part about helping out in the greenhouse is that "it's a break in the day from work. I get to have fun growing quality plants for the community. But the absolute best part is kidding around with Mr. Deal and spraying him with the hose."

Stubborn as a...

Mr. Opel says the hardest thing was "trying to get the donkey to cooperate. They are more stubborn than my students. [The funniest thing was] watching people get thrown off of the donkeys, or listening to the pre-game instructions from the guy who runs the show." At least he didn't have to teach the donkey Government!

Below: In donkey basketball, Ashley Rodeheaver, 10, had trouble "being able to stay on and hold the ball at the same time. Plus you have to go to the other end of the court. But it was all fun at the same time."

Below: Mr. Edwards tries hard to beat the students at donkey basketball. He says the best thing about it was "helping FFA make money, and entertaining the crowd."

Left: Some of the people who went on the Skills USA trip performed well enough to place in their categories of competition. Alyson McKenzie earned 1st place with Job Skill Demonstrations, Aaron Menges placed 3rd for Precision Machine Technology (Machine Tool), Jason Doerr placed 3rd in Masonry, and Andrew Rodeheaver placed 3rd in welding Thoughts from FFA and VICA members...

According to Megan, the most memorable part of FFA was "going to spring judging and having fun."

Megan Bittinger

Yearbook Captures the Moments

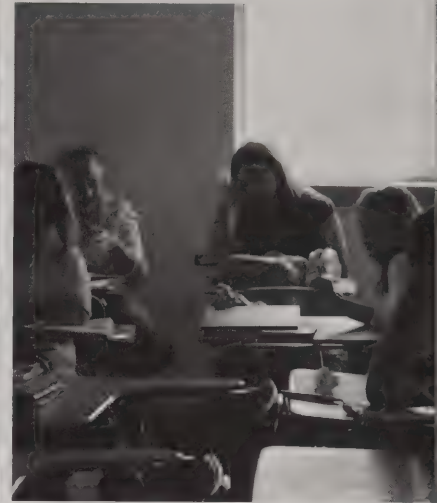

Amber Branthoover, Whitney Glotfelty and Tanya Devine, 10, work hard on their layouts.

Ms. Logan helps photo editor Danielle Fousek, 12, decide how to edit certain photos and where to place them in the yearbook.

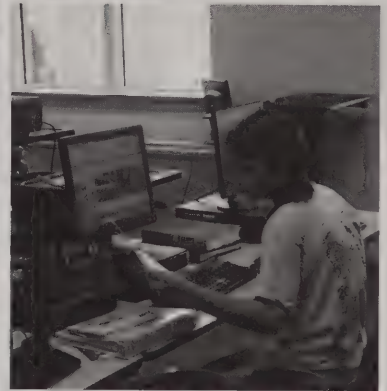

Some of the seniors on the yearbook staff, Tasha Ault, Tiffany Murdock, Maria Perfetti, Jordan Smith, and Corey Edmonds, get together for a final organizational meeting.

The writing staff members use their time efficiently to make sure their layouts are completed on time.

Ms. Theriot gives Stephanie Shapiro, 11, tips on making her layout more interesting.

Copy editor Jackie Rodeheaver, 12, goes over every specific detail in the yearbook to make sure there are no spelling or grammatical errors.

"The most rewarding part would be in August when the books arrive and you see the finished product."

Jackie Rodeheaver, 12, Copy Editor

"The most rewarding part is...creating a publication that the rest of the school will see."

Corey Edmonds, 12, Business Editor

"... the opportunity to see how the yearbook will turn out."

Danielle Fousek, 12, Photo Editor

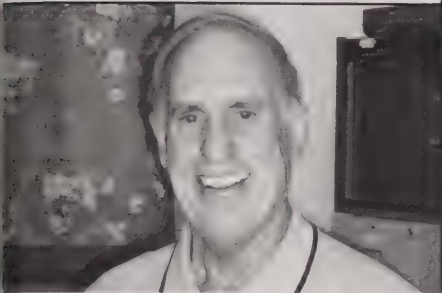

"We've really enjoyed working with the staff members and watching them create a whole book in the course of a year."

Ms. Theriot and Ms. Logan

What is the most rewarding part about yearbook?

Mr. Ables explains, "I like coaching the Mock Trial team because I am able to witness the tremendous improvement of the communication skills of these young people. They come into the program afraid to speak in front of a group of people and leave with so much confidence."

Trial and Error

When it comes to trials and court, most people are clueless as to what actually goes on. The Northern High Mock Trial team members, however, know a great deal about the court system. They are put into scenarios where they have to defend their side of the case and get to know how it feels to be "put on the stand." The members of the Model U.N. team also get to experience the responsibility of making major "official" decisions through their participation in this organization. Both of these clubs give students a preview of the reality of their potential career choices.

Raising the Bar

Do you have proof?

Getting everything right is just one of the things that lawyers have to do to make sure that the judge sides with them. Katie Kelly, 11, asks Sierra Pitman, 10, some very specific questions to make sure that what Sierra is telling is the real story.

Senior Partners

Angie Nunez, Emily Sisler, Caitlin Carr, Kelsey Lytle, and Jordan Smith pose with Mr. Ables, advisor. Without these seniors, Mock Trial will not be the same. They have helped guide newer members, and their help will be greatly missed in the coming year.

What I Mean Is...

When someone is on trial, they had better get their story right, because if not, the lawyers, jury, and definitely the judge will notice and immediately ask them questions about that subject until the story comes out right. "Witness" Kristin DeWitt, 10, tries to tell "lawyer" Laura Butner, 10, what the story really is.

Objection!

Being able to tell when people stray from the truth in order to save themselves is just one of the abilities a good lawyer should possess. Alyson McKenzie, 12, has heard enough and exclaims, "Objection!" in order to get the witness on the stand back to the story.

Involvement...

Northern's Student Council and Honor Society members keep busy by representing their school and serving as role models for the student body. The Student Council is responsible for serving as a voice for the entire student body. Members listen to what their classmates have to say, and make suggestions for change in the school. Most of the participants questioned cited this voice as the reason they enjoy Student Council.

Members of The National Honor Society represent the school in a completely different way. These students are recognized purely for academic achievement, which looks extremely favorable in the college admissions race.

Both groups bring a voice and a positive influence to Northern High School, while raising school participation. These two very important organizations are thriving at NHS.

Elliot Glotfelty and Baylee Martin-Selders, 12, compete in a marshmallow-eating contest during the annual War of the Classes, organized by Student Council. Baylee explains that this was her favorite of the many challenges during the day. "It almost made me puke but it was funny to watch everyone else and we won."

BUILDING LEADERSHIP

Letting Loose...

Every year, the Student Councils of Garrett County hold a Halloween dance open to students at both Northern and Southern High Schools. The dance was held at NHS this year, so student council members organized and decorated for the dance. Here, Caitlin Carr, Stephanie Law, Shayla Rodeheaver, Angela Nunez, and Ashley Branthoover, 12, reap the rewards of Student Council's hard work.

Taking Responsibility...

Amanda Brenneman, Nicole Espada, Carolyn Maxim, Jessica Harvey and Ashley Branthoover take pride in representing NHS Student Council at GCASC county-wide meetings. Showing school pride was not a tall order for Amanda, 11. She states that "Student Council teaches its members how to be leader[s] and take charge of things." Many real-life responsibilities are taught with every responsibility given to members of this club.

In Honor of...

Head of the class...

Stephanie Law, Darryl Glotfelty, Jackie Rodeheaver, and Emily Sisler, 12, serve as the officers of the Honor Society. President Jackie Rodeheaver explains the events that Honor Society members attend throughout the year. "All members of the Honor Society are required to participate in the Adopt-a-Highway program... Every member attends monthly meetings and this winter, we took a bowling trip for fun. As president, I run the monthly meetings, induct new members, and M.C. at the end-of-the-year scholarship assembly." The Honor Society is a great way for academic students to stay involved.

Below: Ashley Branthoover, 12, claims, being a member of Student Council does give me a say in what goes on at NHS, but the administration does not always make things happen."

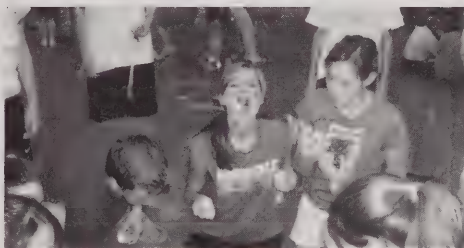

Above: Zac Cupler, 12, has been a member of Student Council since he was a freshman. He says that "since being in high school I've seen Student Council gain more say, which pleases me." It pays to be a member.

Left: Student Council members Jessica Harvey and Ashley Branthoover, 12, enjoyed planning the Kiss a Pig fundraiser. Unfortunately, Ashley's donation can received the most money for a student, and she had to kiss a pig in front of the whole school. Now, that's dedication.

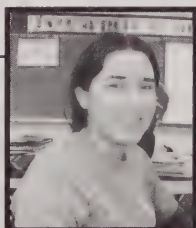

Below: Mariel Hady, 12, shows determination as she takes her turn to bowl during a trip for the Honor Society.

Above: Elliot Glotfelty and Emily Sisler, 12, take a break from bowling for Honor Society. Emily believes that members of the Honor Society are role models for the rest of the school because "the members work hard to achieve high grades, be involved in activities of the school and be active members of their communities."

Left: Andi Miller and Katie Kelly, 11, do what they have to do to win the marshmallow-eating challenge for their junior class. This was an enjoyable challenge for all of the teams, and one that the Student Council undoubtedly enjoyed planning.

What is the best part about being a member of Student Council or Honor Society?

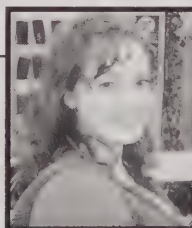

"The reputation that precedes the 'Honor Society' title is an excellent asset to have when entering the college admissions race."

Getting a jump start on her future, Mariel Hady takes Stephanie Law's vital signs as part of her training in allied health class to become a certified nursing assistant.

Aiming For Achievement

Enjoyable classes help to keep students' eyes on the ultimate prize of academic excellence.

"My favorite class is tech ed. because I like the teacher and all we do is play on computers."

"My favorite class is math because I have a lot of friends in that class and we always share a laugh."

"My favorite class is yearbook; it teaches me responsibility but at the same time gives me freedoms that other classes don't have."

"My favorite class is electronics because I get along with Mr. Kirchner."

A "Monster" of a Project

Taking a new angle on Beowulf, senior Cassie Fike, along with a masked Alyson McKenzie, reenacts a scene from the epic poem for their project in English IV. Cassie comments that group projects "...give us a chance to get away from the books and have fun creating our own way of learning something new."

Expression

English is the key to communication

In high school, students are always communicating. They talk to their friends, argue with their teachers, and get involved with different things so that their voices are heard. Some may write English off as just another subject, but it is the core of communication. English teaches us to speak clearly and correctly, to get a point across in an effective and convincing way, and to read and write well. These things are what make English one of the most important subjects a student can study.

Like all subjects in school, there are both negative and positive aspects of English. Bethani Gillum, 12, explains: "I enjoy expressing myself through writing; however, I dislike spending so much time with grammar."

Chelsie Glotfelty, 10, puts emphasis on the work ethic in her particular English class. She states that for her, the aspect of English class that makes it unique is "working right up until the bell rings. It's kind of annoying sometimes, but you get a lot more accomplished." Whether English class is characterized by work ethic, content learned, or class activities, not many students can dispute the importance of the subject itself. Caleb Walters, 10, sums it up like this: "English is an important subject because it often relates to other subjects in school and can often give a better understanding of subjects in school."

A new perspective...

...English Teachers on what they love about the subject, and what they find the most challenging about teaching it

"When students are having fun, teaching is always a pleasure; when they are not having fun, it is drudgery. When the 'light' comes on and students display an active understanding of the material covered, I can share in their success."

Mr. Kolbe

"[English] is all about using words effectively, both to communicate ideas and to understand others. Without these skills, it is difficult to be successful in any subject."

Ms. Theriot

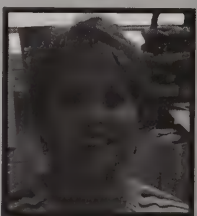

"I love sharing the passion of reading with others. However, many students are entering high school reading and writing below grade level--it can be quite challenging."

Ms. Logan

"English is unique because we study so many different things-- grammar, speaking, writing, research, poetry, fiction, nonfiction, novels-- just to name a few. Nobody ever gets bored!"

Mrs. Coburn

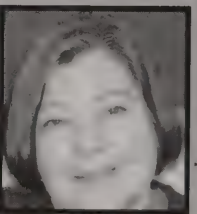

"English is different from other classes because although it forces students to express themselves in ways they may not enjoy (such as writing), it allows them to explore a wide variety of topics through literature."

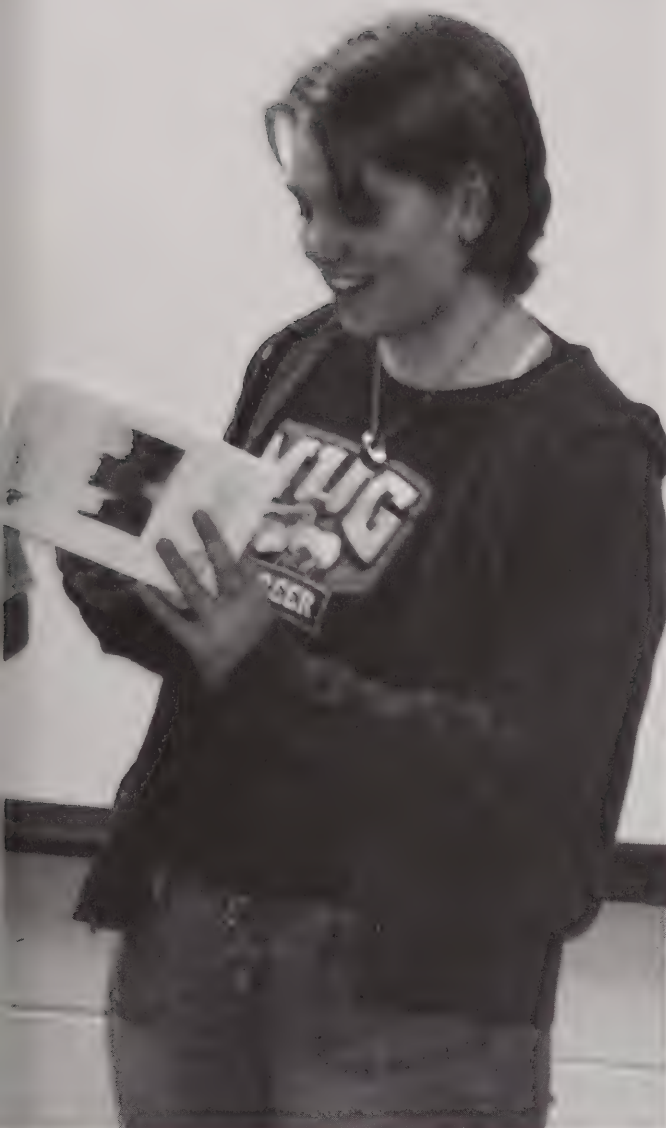

Mrs. Fleming

"Everyone thinks they already know English because they've been speaking the language all their lives. The literature reflects different times, personalities, cultures and values. No one can understand history, sociology or psychology without also studying literature."

Mrs. Derlan

Dailinn Hooks, 12, shows her enthusiasm for English as she receives help from Mrs. Derlan.

Jason Doerr, 12, helps present a group project. He says that he "took a lot of pride in this project because it took a lot of time to build."

English features many skills in one class. Here, Andrea Warnick, 12, focuses on the project at hand.

Ashley Snyder, 12, shows off her English skills by reading from a book that she helped to create.

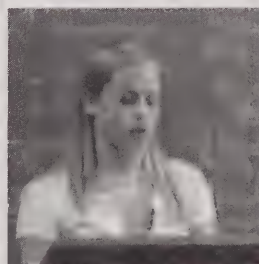

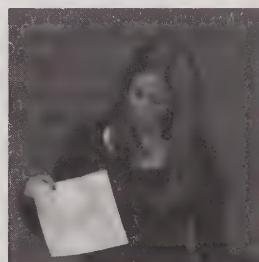

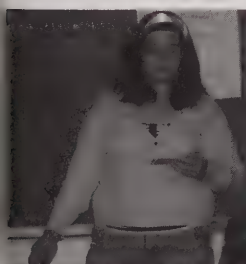

Jackie Rodeheaver, 12, helps her team to present an English project. Teamwork is yet another skill needed for most English classes.

Bryce Manges, 12, proudly displays a poster he made dealing with the tragedy of MacBeth.

KILLS FOR THE EVERYDAY... Top Left: The Writers' Club went on an exciting trip to Washington D.C. to meet authors. The Writers' Club obviously has a talent for and love of English. Anita Opel, 11

"The best part about teaching high school students is seeing the progression of intellectual and emotional maturity from 9th grader to senior. The transition some students can make in those few short years is amazing! Some, however, really don't make much of a change in maturity during those years at all!"

Mrs. Grimm

"The state of Maryland has such a large number of objectives for each class, a decision has to be made. Either you quickly cover all objectives or you take an adequate amount of time on each and risk not having time to cover all required content." [When asked about state requirements for the HSA testing.]

Mr. Hostettler

"I would advise any student who wishes to become a math teacher to take challenging classes, especially math and science, during all four years of high school so you develop effective study habits...Finally, but of equal importance, maintain a good sense of humor."

Mrs. Harvey

"I have been interested in math since 8th grade. I had Mrs. Langley (as many of you had), and she taught in a way that really made me understand and like math."

Mrs. Hawkins

Northern High School Strives to Excel in Math

AP tests, HSA tests, finals: everywhere throughout school, tests are being used to help find out how much students know. Math classes are no different from any other class in that the teachers judge the students' knowledge with tests of all sorts. All year long, students in Ms. Harvey's and Mrs. Grimm's classes learn all the information that they need for the High School Assessment test (HSA). Although math teachers spend a large chunk of time preparing for the HSA, students think that there should be more practice. "I feel that classes spend too much time teaching stuff that isn't really that important, and we should focus more on HSA, because my grade has to pass it," stated 10th grader Autumn Frazee. AP tests and HSA tests increase the amount of pressure that is put on students and teachers, but when you add teachers and students together, the problem can be solved.

Creative learning techniques

Mrs. Hawkins' seventh period students, such as Bryce Manges, 12, and Corey Diehl, 12, learn statistics and other sorts of math problems by using techniques such as playing games like the one pictured above. Bryce Manges states, "by playing math games, I can keep up with my math skills..." Students will find that many of the techniques taught in personal finance will be used throughout their entire lives.

Lab Time!

Students find that labs and hard work are the formula for success in science classes

Students generally learn through reading and writing in most classes, but not all of them. In science, they learn by doing labs and projects. There are also science fairs and much more. Every day, students are gaining more and more knowledge about biology, chemistry, earth science, and physics.

So, what, exactly, is science? Mrs. Deem says, "Earth science is the systematic study of the processes and laws that influence the earth and the universe. In earth science we study geology, meteorology, oceanography and astronomy." The other sciences also help students understand how the world works by studying chemical reactions, life processes, and many other scientific functions.

Like many students in all science classes, sophomore Megan Mast learns from the labs she does. "The best part about doing labs is that they are a fun way that illustrates what students are learning."

Learning From the Past

Not making the same mistakes!

"If you want to understand today, you have to search yesterday." (Pearl S. Buck) Whether you are acting as an individual or part of a country, it is important to learn from the past. Regardless of what kind of history, from World History to U.S. History, it can lay a foundation for the future. Claire Vallano, 10, comments, "The past can help you in the future because the mistakes you make and lessons you learn help you to avoid or deal with issues in the future." By studying the history of our country, we benefit by acquiring knowledge from those who came before us. Social studies classes teach the mistakes and triumphs of our country's past. These can help us both as individuals and as a country. Matthew Watson, 10, says, "It is important to learn the history of our country to see why we live the way we do in this wonderful, beautiful country together as one big, free, beautiful nation."

Finishing Before They Start

"It is easier to go down a hill than up, but the view is best from the top." (Arnold Bennett) Students are getting to the top first by enrolling in Child Care and Allied Health. These classes provide a headstart on some students' future careers.

Allied Health students get a hands-on view of health-related fields. Also, "part of the training allows students to actually work with professionals at Garrett Memorial Hospital and Goodwill Nursing Home. [Each student will] graduate with a license from the Md. Board of Nursing as a certified Nursing Assistant," explains Mrs. Slagle, the Allied Health instructor. Senior Kristen Jenkins enjoys Allied Health because "I get to learn how to take care of old people and I get to see my mom at the hospital."

Child Care is another class that gives students a chance to get a headstart on their intended careers. "Students learn about child development, child care rules and regulations, childhood diseases and safety, nutrition, and about children with special needs," says Mrs. Law, the Child Care teacher. Students get to travel outside of school boundaries to elementary schools, a day care center, and a Head Start center to interact with young children.

Both Child Care and Allied Health students learn an extensive amount of valuable information for their futures. They're well on their way to the top!

Going Far

Finding a Career

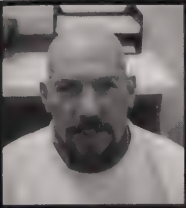

"Find out what you like doing best and get someone to pay you for doing it" (Katherine Whitehorn). For some students, finding a career is a challenge. However, the students in business and electronics classes have already mapped out what they want to do with their lives.

These classes will help students achieve what they want to become, whether it be an accountant, an electrician, or someone who works with computers. "[Principles of Engineering] gives young students the chance to see what engineers do for a living. These experiences are relevant to the student no matter what field of study they choose," says Mr. Perfetti.

Some students take these classes because nothing else is of interest to them. On the other hand, most students put these classes on their schedules because they really have a passion for business. "Accounting teaches you to manage money, write checks, and handle all issues you will have to face when you get older," says sophomore, Tanya Devine.

Computer applications and keyboarding are also major classes that help students in areas involving computers. By pursuing these career paths in high school, students hope that they will find what they want to do for the rest of their lives.

Andrew Rodeheaver, 12, comments, "[Vocational classes] help you prepare for the job that you are going to do when you get out of school." Students taking vocational classes--masonry, carpentry, auto mechanics, agriculture, and machine tool--are learning skills to prepare them for the future. Students are getting a head start on working life while still in high school. Jason Doerr, 12, says "[Taking Masonry in high school] helps because it lets students realize whether or not [it's] the field of work they want to be in for the rest of their lives. They find out that masonry is a lot harder than it looks, so then they won't end up wasting time on an occupation they won't like." Students in these classes get a feel for what the job asks for, and decide whether or not it's right for them. T.J. Benton, 12, comments, "Taking these classes helps me so if I ever do anything [in this field] in the future...I know what I'm doing, and it gives me something to fall back on in the future if I need a job." All students taking these classes get a head start on life, knowing what jobs they want, and how to pursue them!

Students Expressing Their Individuality through Art, Theater and Music

Art, general music and theater all allow students to express different aspects of creativity, but all come together as the fine arts. Fine Arts is about new things, and two of the three teachers of these classes are only beginning their years of teaching at NHS.

Mr. Paxton, who is in his second year at NHS, teaches the art classes. Art is a place for students who express themselves in paintings, sketches, sculptures and many other creative media. Junior Tony Messina says his favorite technique is "pencil drawing, because it is something that I can do anywhere." Many students have different techniques that they can learn and explore while in Mr. Paxton's class.

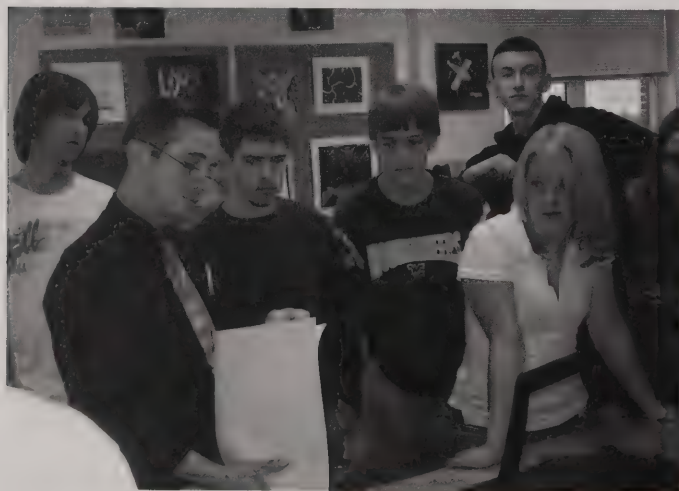

Theater is taught by Mrs. Derlan, who is also one of the English teachers at NHS. In theater, students actually perform the arts through acting.

Senior Shawna Stallman "enjoyed working in partners on a two-person play." Some history is also taught in theater class. Sophomore Lara Beitzel enjoys "how in [class], Mrs. Derlan teaches us the history of dancing [and] acting."

While the arts can be visual, creativity can also be expressed through sound. General music is taught by Mr. Salisbury. Like Mr. Paxton, he is new to NHS; this was his first year. General music sometimes comes naturally to students. Freshman Jonathan Justice says that "I like the class because it is easy to understand."

Many NHS students discover a new freedom in creativity when they take fine art classes, especially when the new teachers add a freshness to these creative classes.

Traveling and talking around the world...all in a classroom!

While learning a foreign language can often be challenging, the rewards that follow are nearly endless. From cooking to traveling and everything in between, students find that this newfound knowledge is helping them in many ways.

Ms. Norris, French teacher says that "studying a foreign language can benefit students in several ways: it can help students understand their own language, improve their language skills, increase their vocabulary, understand sentence structure, and help improve grammar usage. Studying a foreign language also exposes students to a different culture full of interesting literature, unique customs, and a different view of the world around us."

These positive results of learning a new language can help students both during and after their high school careers.

Mrs. Wilt, Spanish teacher, emphasizes the importance of learning a new language by pointing out that "There are over 414 million Spanish speakers in the world and over 35 million are legal citizens in the USA."

Whether it's Spanish or French, students find that taking a foreign language is beneficial to them in many ways. Amber Branthoover, a sophomore, sums it all up by saying, "With the growing diversity in our population today, learning different foreign languages is important so that you can communicate and learn from others."

"To Motivate Young People to be Better Citizens"
-JROTC mission statement

Every Friday at NHS, a handful of students wear the JROTC uniform. They walk with their heads high with pride. They know that the JROTC will motivate them and "bring out their best," as LTC Sheetz comments. These students are goal-driven and some even have plans to pursue a career in the military. These are the students who make up the JROTC.

Many of the determined students strive to be more prepared for Raiders meets. The Raiders team is a program that JROTC offers. On Tuesdays and Fridays, the students stay after school for scheduled meets that help them mentally and physically. They work out in the weight room or go outside for runs and exercises. Sophomore Rodney Schroyer says, "I enjoy the Raiders Team because it not only keeps me in physical shape, it keeps me motivated all the time." While some students have short-term goals on the Raiders team, other students are even going to pursue a long term goal in the military.

The JROTC program can help students with future military careers. Richard Cosner, 11th grade, "plans on going to West Point Military Academy, or [taking] ROTC at WVU with the army, after enlisting in the Reserves and pursuing a lifelong military career." To others, such as Sophomore Megan Sisler, the JROTC program ends with NHS. She plans "on becoming a police officer." No matter what students may choose, the JROTC program will leave a lasting impression on them for a lifetime. They know what they want in life, and this program can help them get it.

Life's Highway

Life Lessons

Changing the lanes from the gym to the classroom, students learn skills they need for various roads on the highway of life.

Driver's education teaches students basic driving skills they use for a big step in life, getting their licenses. Students such as Allie Benton, grade 10, enjoy driver's ed. "Just to get out of class to drive around town."

First Aid is a class that teaches students CPR and other important things to know in case of an emergency. "It is nice to instruct the students [in first aid] so that they can hopefully help someone else or themselves. Many people don't know what to do when emergencies happen and hopefully this course can be beneficial," says First Aid teacher, Mr. Carr.

Weight training and physical education are classes that teach students how to stay healthy and how to properly work out. Most athletes take weight training to stay fit and to keep in shape for the sports they participate in.

Why do students take physical education? Is it because they need credit, to stay fit, or just to have fun? From volleyball to the famous "football-basketball," students practice skills of endurance and flexibility while having fun with their classmates. Senior Jackie Rodeheaver has chosen to take phys. ed. three out of her four years of high school because she "has always been an active person and enjoyed playing sports, so phys. ed. was a way to stay active all year long."

Healthy decisions make healthy people. One health student, 9th grader Michael Rugola, says "health [class] teaches me to stay active and to practice healthful skills in life." From movies to pretend marriages, students learn how to make healthy decisions on the highway of life.

Band and Chorus coming together.

"Harmony means that the relationship between all elements used in a composition is balanced, is good."

(Karlheinz Stockhausen)

This year, Mrs. Beachy and Mr. Salisbury, the new band and choral directors, have a vision. "I would like to see, and Mrs. Beachy and I are working toward, a greater sense of the band and choir programs being viewed as a unified, cohesive department," Mr. Salisbury states.

To get to this point of cohesion requires cooperation from both the band and chorus. Even though there was some disagreement between the two classes at first, they now both see that what Mr. Salisbury and Mrs. Beachy are doing is for a good cause. "I agree that it should be a department so it will build the fine arts program. I think it's a big step for the county. I also think that if it's going to be a department, then everyone needs to put the same effort into it," says Baylee Martin-Selders when asked about the idea of joining the programs.

In previous years, it was only the band that went to New York to compete. This year, however, both the band and the chorus will be flying to Chicago to compete. This will be a giant step forward to achieving the goal. Also, for their Christmas concert, the band and chorus combined for part of the program. Hopes are that the goal of harmony will be met when the two come together.

"I'm very happy with the way things have been going so far this year for many reasons. I have supportive faculty and administrators and wonderful students who have made this year start in a very positive light."

Mrs. Beachy, Choir

After shifting from the elementary and middle school level to the high school level, "there were some obvious differences. Age and maturity are higher, at least some of the time, and skill level is also greater. I am enjoying the challenge of teaching students that are well beyond the beginner level."

Mr. Salisbury, Band

"Being a senior this year, I felt a sense of finality that I hadn't felt before, so I thought I needed to perform my best every time."

Brooks DuBose, 12

"Sometimes it's enjoyable being a drum major, and sometimes it's not. There's a lot of responsibility, like making sure people are doing the right thing at the right time and place. It's fun, though, when it comes to shows and awards."

Baylee Martin-Selders, 12

"Being in two different chorus classes can sometimes be confusing and boring because we do the same things, but it is still very fun. Show choir is more difficult because we have to dance and sing, rather than just sing like we do in regular chorus. Both classes are very fun and I enjoy taking them."

Ariana Wilt, 11

"Chamber choir is more difficult than last year. Since there are only five people in chamber choir this year...it [is] more difficult because you have to know your part really well. You also have to sing louder to be heard. Chamber choir is supposed to be for advanced singers, so naturally it is harder."

Lindsey Glotfelty, 10

"It is a lot of fun to be the only boy in chorus. The girls are very supportive by telling me that I am a very good singer. They also make me laugh."

Justin Brant, 9

As a member of the NHS color guard, Autumn Frazee adds a visual effect to the performance.

The drumline supplies the rhythm and beat to the halftime show.

Kristen Dewitt stays in formation so everything looks perfect.

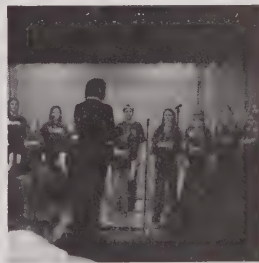

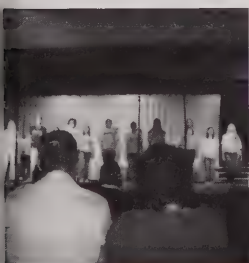

Baylee Martin-Selders orchestrates the band's movements during a Friday night show.

Playing the xylophone, Lincoln Humberson adds a delicate touch to the band's performance.

To the left, Baylee Martin-Selders and the band await the crowd's approval.

Music to My Ears

Pulling Together A Community

A school would be nothing without the strong backbone of its community.

"My favorite part of Envirothon is the team. Each member contributes something to the team. Whether it be smarts or humor, all the different people make each meeting enjoyable."

"With the endless design and fabrication options, the most difficult part of the competition is sometimes simply fusing the ideas of all the team members..."

"I chose to participate in Envirothon because my brother was a former team member and he introduced me to it."

"Having to solve all of the different problems that arise" is the most challenging part of being on the robotics team.

A Winning Tradition

Angel Giron, Megan McKewen, Nicole Opel, Anita Opel and Sarah Shawley make up the "Northern Lights" envirothon team. The team won the county competition once again this year and advanced to the state competition.

Piecing it Together

Sophomore Megan McKewen, junior Danielle Opel and senior Sarah Shawley work hard to accomplish their task during the county competition.

Identifying Nature

Anita Opel, junior, and Angel Giron, senior, work together in hopes of bringing home the trophy to Northern once again.

By Jackie Rodeheaver

One Last Look...

Sophomore member J.P. Law gives the robot one last look over, perhaps thinking about all the work the team has put into its creation. The most challenging part of robotics, according to J.P., is "building the robot because of all the different ideas."

Geiko or GaCo?

Andrew Beitzel, freshman, shows off the teams mascot.

I, Robot?

Chris Wood, junior, puts some last-minute touches on the team's robot before the competition starts. Chris comments that his favorite part of being on the robotics team is "going and competing at the regional competition."

Team F.I.R.S.T

The F.I.R.S.T. robotics team is made up of students from both Northern and Southern high schools. The team works together to compete in local, state and national competitions.

To Our Sweet Girl:

It is so hard to believe that you are graduating, it seems like yesterday we were cradling you in our arms. You have grown up too fast! We are so very proud of the beautiful young woman you have become. We know that God has wonderful things planned for you, so keep him first in your life and everything else will fall into place. You are the joy of our life and we love you so much.

My wish for you is that life is all that you want it to be. Your dreams stay big, and your worries stay small, and you never need to carry more than you can hold. I hope you never look back but you never forget all the ones who love you. I hope you always forgive, and you never regret, and you help somebody every chance you get. While you're getting where you're getting to, I hope you know somebody loves you and wants the same things too!

WHY GOD MADE LITTLE BOYS
GOD MADE A WORLD OUT OF HIS DREAMS
OF MAGIC MOUNTAINS, OCEANS AND STREAMS
PRAIRIES AND PLAINS AND WOODED LAND.
THEN PAUSED AND THOUGHT, "I NEED SOMEONE TO STAND,
ON TOP OF THE MOUNTAIN, TO CONQUER THE SEA,
EXPLORE THE PLAINS AND CLIMB THE TREES.
SOMEONE TO START OUT SMALL AND GROW,
STURDY AND STRONG LIKE A TREE" AND SO
HE CREATED BOYS, FULL OF SPIRIT AND FUN
TO EXPLORE AND CONQUER TO ROMP AND RUN
WITH DIRTY FACES, AND BANGED UP CHINS
WITH COURAGEOUS HEARTS AND BOYISH GRINS.
AND WHEN HE HAD COMPLETED THE TASK HE'D BEGUN,
HE SURELY SAID "THAT'S A JOB WELL DONE."

Corey,

Through the years we have watched you grow into a wonderful young man that we are very proud of. May God continue to bless you in all you do. Congratulations.

We Love You.

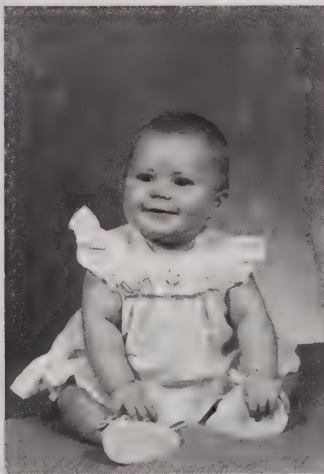

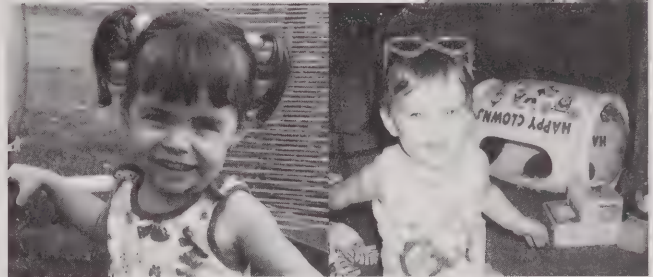

Mom & Dad

Jackie Rodeheaver

Congratulations, Jackie. The past 13 years have flown by.

But in those past 13 years you have become a wonderful young lady that we are very blessed to have in our lives. You will never know how proud we are of you. Good Luck! And remember, like the last 13 years, we will always be here for you.

Love- Mom, Dad, Jar-head, PaPa, & NanNan Sines & PaPa & NanNan Moo.

Ashley Garlitz

Through the years we have watched you grow and become the wonderful daughter you are. We are proud of you and your accomplishments.

Good Luck
We Love You,
Mom & Dad

Let Freedom Ring

Who knew that one sound could mean so much to so many?

It's a sound that each student and teacher grew accustomed to hearing at the same time everyday. But when the final bell rings on that last day, it takes on a whole new meaning. That "beep" signals that yet another year has come to an end, and another summer is just beginning. One hundred and eighty days of learning, laughing and making memories has concluded and students look forward to the two months of freedom ahead of them. For seniors, the sound of the final bell signals the end of a journey, as they watch their secondary education come to an end, and anticipate college or the work world in the fall. For the underclassmen, they know that all too soon they will be hearing that bell again in the fall, but not without making some outstanding summer memories, and knowing they will be coming back one step higher on the totem pole. The 2006-2007 school year was full of accomplishments for Northern High School staff and students. Outstanding sports seasons, receiving Middle States Accreditation, and creating an award-winning electric car are just a few. Although students may complain of going to school, they know how to make the school year count and make it enjoyable, proving that "life between summers" can be pretty memorable.

Nothin' But Smiles

Above Top: Rachel Birkby, 10, shares a Kodak moment with Porky Pig during the best buddies trip to Six Flags.

Above Bottom: Not letting the snowy weather make him frown, Vincent Fazenbaker, 12, shows a double smile through a snow drift.

Scott Bash, 12

Workin' At The Car Wash!

Cheerleading's not all fun and games. Rachel Margroff and Katie Kelly show they're not afraid to get their hands dirty in order to make money for the team.

Reflections

Help! I've fallen...

Far Left: The teachers test their strength against their students' during the war of the classes, but with all attempts, they failed.

Yearbook Shout-Outs:

Yearbook would like to thank the following businesses for participating in our most successful fundraiser, the Elite discount card sale: Annie's Kitchen, Auntie Anne's, Brenda's Pizzeria, Burger King in McHenry, China Wok, Claire's, Dairy Queen, Denny's, Dunhams, Garrett 8 Cinema, Keyser's Ridge Truck Stop, KFC, Long John Silver's, NuView, Oakland Towne Restaurant, Orange Julius, Par-Matt Lanes, Quizno's Subs in Oakland, Santa Fe Grill, Smiley's Pizzeria, Subway, Taco Bell. We would also like to thank all of the businesses that have purchased yearbook ads.

Over the year, yearbook often requests pictures that we may need, but do not have access to. These pictures range from baby photos, to weekend hang-outs, to summer vacation, etc. We would like to send out a big THANK-YOU to all of the parents and students who have supported us throughout the year!! We would especially like to thank Beth Beitzel for her help with the track/cross-country layout and Warren Glotfelty for his help with the golf layout.

THANK YOU ALL FOR SUPPORTING THE NORTHSTAR YEARBOOK!!
